

Little Door to the Eleventh of December

Time Travel: What Happened between October – December 1925?

It's always interesting to look back at the past to find out what were some of the important news or developments back then. Much more preferable than the past returning to us.

- 📖 October 17: On this day, the first German Imperial Warriors Day (Deutscher Reichskriegertag) took place in Leipzig, Germany. It ended on October 19.
- 📖 October 30: World premiere of the operetta „Paganini“ by Franz Lehár (1870-1948) in the Johann-Strauß-Theatre in Vienna.
- 📖 November 1: In a public declaration, the German government defense its Locarno-policies against attacks from the right-wing parties.
- 📖 November 2: The vast majority of the National Council of the French socialist party expressed their disagreement with the policies of Minister President Paul Painlevé (1863-1933).
- 📖 November 3: In a speech broadcasted through the radio, the Minister of Foreign Affairs Gustav Stresemann (1878-1929) explains the results of the Conference of Locarno that took place in October.
- 📖 December 1: Concluding the negotiations from October 5 to October 16, the Treaties of Locarno were signed. Hans Luther (1879-1962) signed for Germany.
- 📖 December 2: The companies BASF, Bayer Hoechst, Agfa and others merge to form the chemical group I. G. Farben.
- 📖 December 3: After consultations with King Alfons XIII. (1886-1941), the Spanish dictator Miguel Primo de Rivera (1870-1930) changed his military directorate with the addition of some civilians into a cabinet. However, the constitution remained suspended.
